| 4.28. King Lars Porsenna decided to support Tarquins and took part in their second expedition to Rome. Tarquins' and Porsenna's united armies approached Rome. Senate was frightened of Roman plebs accepting peace proposals ([174], Bk. 2, 9). Let us recall that: Porsenna = Porsena, Porsinna, Porsina (see [343], p. 785) | 4.28. Procopius did not report whether or not Franks participated in Totila's second expedition to Rome. Moreover, Theodebert allegedly refused to give Totila his daughter. However, several years earlier, Franks' armies did take part in war along with Goths, and Vitiges resorted to Theodebert's help as early as war with Romans. Then Frank Theodebert intruded Italy but retreated after Belisarius' threats (ibid., [109]) |
| 4.29. Second expedition to Rome, according to Livy, occurred in 546 A.D. (under $X + 300$). Meanwhile, Valerius headed Roman armies against Porsenna = Porsena (ibid.) | 4.29. Second expedition to Rome occurred in 548–549 A.D. Belisarius was called from Italy 540–544 A.D. and headed Roman armies against Persians (!) |

The agreement of the dates 546 and 548–549 A.D. is close (under $X + 300$).

| 4.30. Valerius was at war with Porsenna during second invasion by enemy on Rome (ibid.) | 4.30. Belisarius was at war with "Persians" (= PRS if freed of vowels) before second invasion of Rome) |

The sound analogy is obvious, viz., Porsena = Persians (PRSN = PRSN).

| 4.31. Porsenna (and Tarquins) laid siege to Rome, but could not take it ([174], Bk. 2, 10) | 4.31. Totila conquered part of Rome, except Adrian's castle with Roman guards (ibid.) |
| 4.32. Defending Rome, Horatius Cocles was especially valiant (ibid.). Name: Cocles = CCLS, which is almost coincident with CLCC | 4.32. Especially valiant was brave army commander Cilician Paul in defense of Rome (in particular, of Adrian's castle; see above) (ibid.) Name: Cilician = CLCC |
| 4.33. Not taking Rome, Porsenna retreated from Roman bounds. Thus ended second battle of Rome ([174], Bk. 2, 13) | 4.33. In 549 A.D., Totila left Rome. Thus ended second battle of Rome (ibid.) |
| 4.34. It was last battle of Rome in war against Tarquins (ibid.) | 4.34. It was last battle of Rome in Gothic war (ibid., [109]) |
