| 12a. Certain chronicles called king Dardanus founder of kingdom and City, whereas others attributed this to king Pridesh. Thus, at beginning of Trojan kingdom, there is confusion between two founders (of two cities?) | 12b. Speaking of foundation of kingdom and city, Livy also mentioned two founders of two cities, Romulus and Remus, each of whom founded one capital city, but then Romulus killed Remus and destroyed his capital. Thus there are two founders of two cities in Livy's regal Rome |
| 13a. Kingdom and city created were called by founders name (king Pridesh according to certain chronicles) (ibid.) | 13b. Kingdom created bore name of city's and state's founder Romulus, being Roman one |

To 13a: "The king liked this spot, and he founded here a city, calling it by his own name" ([250], p. 70).

This name is not at all Troy (see below). We will speak of the First Kingdom (Dardanus' or Pridesh's), which was destroyed when sacked for the first time (see below).

| 14a. In Trojan kingdom's history, so-called first sack of Troy under Laomedon, king Priam's father, was fixed along with last and principal sack, which we will call second ([250], p. 89) | 14b. In Roman kingdom's Western Third Empire's history, destruction under Romulus Augustulus was fixed along with last and major destruction, which we will call second (see below) |

To 14b: We mean the fall of the "purely Roman" kingdom under Romulus Augustulus (Italy's capture by Odoacer), it being the first destruction, whereas the second took place already after the Gothic war.

| 15a. These are only two major sacks, second being final, fixed in Trojan kingdom's history (ibid.) | 15b. These are only two major destructions, second being final, fixed in Empire's history (see above) |
| 16a. First sack marked that of so-called 1st Trojan kingdom (Dardanus' or Pridesh's; see above) (ibid.), after which so-called Second Trojan kingdom under king Priam arose for short time, around one generation (ibid.) | 16b. First destruction marked that of "purely Roman" Western Third Empire, its last kings Odoacer and Theodoric not being Roman (see above), after which Second kingdom, of Ostrogoths under Theodoric, arose for short time, around one generation |
| 17a. Invaders who destroyed First Trojan kingdom came from West. "The invaders from the West took ... the city" (ibid.) | 17b. Invaders who destroyed first "purely Roman kingdom" came to Italy from northwest |
| 18a. There were two invaders: Jason and Hercules (ibid.) | 18b. There were two invaders: Odoacer and Theodoric (see above) |
